Contemporary painter Trish Biddle's works will be shopped for licensing deals through New York-based Creative Properties.

The firm is looking to target her brand to woman through categories such as gifts and collectibles, social expressions, stationery, art and design, home goods, apparel and accessories.

Currently, Biddle is the official artist of the 2009 Westminster Kennel Club Dog Show, to take place in New York City this month. She's also previously been the official artist of the 2008 Kentucky Derby.

"We believe that this brand captures the glamour, romance and elegance of Trish's retro-vintage style," says Steven Scabelo, senior vice president of business development for Creative Properties. "Her images evoke a mood and aura that will appeal to today's aspirational women, particularly during today's economic climate."
